‘A Raising Godly Girls Guide to Biblical Worldview’

‘A biblical worldview shapes the way a girl can influence an unholy world for Christ using the God-given gifts bestowed upon her at the moment of her creation,’ says AHG founder

CINCINNATI, Ohio — Christianity is in trouble in America. A recent report found that 96% of Americans do not hold fast to a biblical worldview. In a survey conducted by famed pollster George Barna, research suggested that the long COVID-19 lockdowns impacted the already-dwindling number of people who adhere to a biblical worldview. This tragic report paints a bleak picture for America’s children. If parents are losing their biblical framework, how can children learn about the Bible and implement it in their daily lives?

American Heritage Girls (AHG, www.americanheritagegirls.org) is at the forefront of the fight for the traditional biblical worldview. American Heritage Girls is a Christ-centered character and leadership development program for girls five to 18 years of age. When it comes to raising godly girls, American Heritage Girls has been instilling biblical values in America’s girls for nearly three decades.

“If you believe the Bible is God-breathed, its teachings should inform the way that you view the world,” said AHG Founder and Executive Director Patti Garibay. “A Christian will, therefore, think differently than non-Christians, and this should affect every area of their lives. American Heritage Girls is committed to coming alongside parents and the Church to underscore a biblical worldview. As girls dig into the Scripture, they come to find a deeper relationship with their Creator and allow His Word to inspire the lens through which they view the world.”

American Heritage Girls is proud to announce the release of “A Raising Godly Girls Guide to Biblical Worldview.” The groundbreaking guide is intentionally designed to aid parents and teachers instill a biblical worldview and includes useful tools such as key Bible verses, a glossary of terms, and even biblical responses to crucial worldview topics.

Garibay commented, “Girls today are inundated with the voices of others and opinions on what is right and true. Parents, teachers, coaches, and influencers all speak loudly into the minds of girls who are looking to discover their identity. But there’s one voice that can be difficult to comprehend amid the noise of the others — God’s. It’s unlikely that a girl hears a loud booming voice that she knows belongs to her Creator. She probably, like a lot of us, hears that still, small voice in the back of her mind. It can be hard to decipher, especially in difficult circumstances, if this is God speaking Truth or the enemy seeking to manipulate.

“When a girl’s identity and her worldview lens are rooted in faith, the Gospel message doesn’t stay neatly tucked in her Bible only to be taken off the shelf each Sunday, it impacts every part of her life! A biblical worldview shapes the way she understands herself, her purpose in the world, and how she can influence an unholy world for Christ using the God-given gifts bestowed upon her at the moment of her creation.”

American Heritage Girls was founded in 1995 when Founder and Executive Director Patti Garibay became concerned with the direction the Girl Scouts of America was headed. Garibay, along with a group of concerned parents, wanted a faith-based, scout-type character development program for their daughters, and American Heritage Girls was born. Today, there are Troops in all 50 states and girls being served in 15 countries around the globe. Thousands of volunteer members across the country are helping girls grow in their faith, cultivate a heart for service, enjoy the great outdoors, and have more fun than they can imagine.

At AHG, girls ages five to 18 meet together as a single Troop at the same time and then break out into Units by Levels. This gives AHG girls the important social experience of interacting with friends and godly mentors of various ages; members also learn leadership skills within a group setting. AHG Troops are located in local communities across the nation.
